19 JULY 2016
10:00 am - 1:00 pm

Conference Room 3
UN Headquarters

This dynamic, interactive discussion will bring together government officials, senior policy-makers, businesses, trade unions and key stakeholders to discuss the range of strategies, challenges and lessons learned in international efforts to eliminate forced labour, child labour, modern slavery and human trafficking from global supply chains.

The panel will also explore the necessity of additional actions from governments and the international system to facilitate this goal. This event will contribute insights into the formation of Alliance 8.7 (referring to target 8.7 of the UN's SDGs) which brings together all stakeholders to focus efforts in achieving this goal.

Representatives from the private sector will be from the electronics, sports and footwear, textiles, mining, and seafood industry.
